Summary

Children are happy and communicate confidently with their peers and care staff. They develop strong relationships. Most children are independent and are given choices and opportunities to express their opinion in the knowledge that their voices will be heard.

Staff are experienced and understand and follow policies and procedures to promote well-being and safety. Staff encourage children to express themselves and interact with them in a positive and caring manner. They plan well to meet children's requirements and interests.

The people running the service ensure that the environment is safe and secure and set clear guidance to ensure that everyone understands their responsibilities. They offer a good range of resources to meet children's individual needs both indoors and outdoors.

The people running the service ensure that they comply with most regulations and national minimum standards. They have strong partnerships with parents, carers and the local community. They have a system in place to review the service annually.

Children are given good opportunities to make choices and decisions and express their opinion. They communicate confidently with care staff and their peers. Their wishes, feelings and needs are considered. Children's views and interests are valued ensuring their individual well-being. Children have a strong voice and know they can join in group activities when they are ready. For example, during song time, some children sang along from the role play area rather than on the mat with their friends.

Children are happy and have formed good relationships with care staff and their peers. They are active and express enjoyment in their play. They have a sense of belonging and they are clearly familiar with daily routines. Children feel safe and happy and like the freedom to choose play areas within the room. Children are learning to understand their feelings and show delight. For example, children laugh when a member of staff plays pee-po with them over the display the boards. Children confidently show us books they enjoy and invite us to join in their play.

Children interact confidently and openly and work together and socialise in a friendly manner. Most children understand how to take their turn, wait, and share. The interaction between the children and the care staff demonstrates that children develop good communication skills. New children settle quickly and stay close to staff they have bonded with.

Most children are active and curious learners and take part in activities enthusiastically. They show interest and excitement and enjoy taking part in tasks. For example, using story cards as tickets to attend an imaginary show they are performing, handing out tickets to their friends. They enjoy a range of good opportunities indoors and are free to choose activities and move around the setting. For example, to complete jigsaws, paint, ride a bike or role-play.

Children are given good and regular opportunities to develop physical, social and emotional skills and they can follow their interests successfully. Children develop their independence skills by using the toilet, washing and drying their hands. Children enjoy the role of being helper of the day, handing out bowls and cups to their friends with pride. Children skilfully pour water or milk from the jug into their cups.

Care and Development

Good

Staff are experienced and understand policies and procedures to promote healthy lifestyles, physical activities, safety and personal well-being, and implement them effectively. They follow robust cleaning and hygiene routines. For example, disinfecting tables before and after snack-time and washing their hands regularly. All staff have completed first aid, safeguarding children and food hygiene training. Staff follow appropriate guidance when serving food and helping children to go to the toilet. Healthy snacks are provided and children enjoy eating, chatting and socialising at the table. Staff identify risks and manage them consistently. They understand safeguarding procedures and can explain the setting's arrangements confidently.

Staff respond in a consistent manner and listen to children's views and respect them. They interact very well and demonstrate encouragement, warmth, and kindness as well as sensitivity to individual children's needs and experiences. They know the children well and know when to intervene and can explain this to us. They proudly tell us how much children have come on since attending the setting. Staff ensure they know beforehand what a new child's interests are and prepare resources and toys that will engage them and distract them from being parted from their parents / carers.

Staff offer a variety of play and learning activities suitable to the age and development of the children in their care. There are good opportunities during snack time to develop children's independence skills. Staff plan well for the next stages and review progress regularly. They have systems in place to provide suitable care and opportunities for children with additional needs, should this be required.

EnvironmentGood

The setting is located in the church hall and is exclusively for their use. It provides a clean, warm and safe environment. The setting has a good level of security and is kept locked at all times, allowing children to move independently around the indoor area. People running the service ensure that daily and general risk assessments, as well as fire risk assessments, are conducted and reviewed regularly. People running the service ensure that the ratio of care staff to children is correct and that they supervise children very well. Children can access the toilets independently with care staff ensuring that clear and safe arrangements are in place. A visitor's book, a rota, a children's register and a staff signing-in record are in place ensuring the safety and security of the children and the setting.

The indoor area is very spacious and consists of two adjacent rooms. This allows for small group play as well as physical activities such as dance and movement. The setting also has an area to store confidential paperwork, a dedicated kitchen to prepare snacks and areas within the lobby where private discussions can be conducted with parents, carers and visitors. A large outdoor area to the rear of the building, is secure and offers ample space for physical play such as bikes and slides. There is a butterfly garden in the corner which they have plans to develop into a vegetable patch.

People who run the setting provide a wide range of good quality, developmentally appropriate play and learning resources to ensure children have a good variety and choice to stimulate the children's curiosity. There are play areas set up such as a book corner, tabletop jigsaws, role play area and craft and painting area. Children can access the wide variety of toys and resources easily, as they are stored at low level or within their reach.

Leadership and Management

Good

People who run the setting maintain and share an up-to-date, effective statement of purpose that accurately reflects the service provided and meets the national minimum standards. People who run the setting engage positively with Care Inspectorate Wales (CIW) and are keen to drive improvement. They ensure all required records are organised and accurately kept. They notify CIW of significant events.

People who run the setting implement current best practice relevant to the children in their care. They actively implement self-evaluation. They produce a thorough and reflective quality of care report, seeking and implementing the views of children, parents, and staff.

People who run the setting follow timely and robust recruitment processes to safeguard children and follow the setting's policy and procedures. They have good systems in place to update suitability checks as required. There are robust recruitment procedures and suitability checks are completed as required. However, there is no performance management process in place and staff and leaders do not have regular supervisions and annual appraisals. This has been identified as an action for improvement (AFI)

People who run the setting have developed meaningful and positive relationships with parents and carers. There are good systems in place to keep parents well informed about their child's time at the setting. Parents told us how supportive and approachable the staff are and how much the children love attending. They are extremely happy with how their children's independence is nurtured and encouraged and feel their children are flourishing. People who run the setting make full use of a range of opportunities available on their doorstep to enhance children's learning in the real world, such as visits to the forest school soft play area and an adventure farm.

Ratings	What the ratings mean
Excellent	These are services which are committed to ongoing improvement with many strengths, including significant examples of sector leading practice and innovation. These services deliver high quality care and support and are able to demonstrate that they make a strong contribution to improving children’s well-being.
Good	These are services with strengths and no important areas requiring significant improvement. They consistently exceed basic requirements, delivering positive outcomes for children and actively promote their well-being.
Adequate	These are services where strengths outweigh areas for improvement. They are safe and meet basic requirements but improvements are required to promote well-being and improve outcomes for children.
Poor	These are services where important areas for improvement outweigh strengths and there are significant examples of non-compliance that impact negatively on children’s well-being. Where services are poor we will take enforcement action and issue a non-compliance notice.
